

Mainframe - Analysis configuration and execution

Before running an analysis or generating a snapshot, you may need to check the default automated analysis configuration settings that have been set for you during the Version deployment. You may find that the default configuration settings need no further adjustment, however, you are free to make any changes you may require.

See the following for more information:

- Mainframe - Analysis configuration
- Mainframe - Run and validate analysis
 - Mainframe - Analysis messages
 - Mainframe - Analysis results